representing rights and titles. If the participant cannot present a written permission of the organiser at the venue, he may be ejected following an order.

5. The organiser shall call the participant who jeopardises the implementation of the sports event as well as the personal and material safety of others, or who demonstrates a racist, xenophobic, political, threatening or indecent behaviour through unsportsmanlike cheering and encouragement to stop demonstrating such conduct.

6. If during the sports event a participant or any party requesting admission fails to meet the requirements specified in Section 2, or fails to stop the behaviour referred to in Section 4-6 despite the security staff's warning, admission shall be denied and he shall be ejected from the sports event. The security staff shall order the person to be ejected to prove his identity. If the person to be ejected fails to obey the order, the security staff shall – in the absence of legal provisions to the contrary – immediately call the police to conduct an identity check. Until the arrival of the police, but maximum until the end of the third hour from the notification of the police, the security staff has the right to retain the person to be ejected, provided that the person is retained in an area covered by a surveillance camera system in operation on the site.

7. If someone has been ejected from a sports event, or who was not ejected because an intervention by the organiser (security staff) at the venue of the sports event was thought to provoke actions by the spectators that would have disproportionately compromised the safety of the sports event, the organiser will ban such person from attending the sports events. Anyone who violates the Ground Regulations in any other way may also be excluded.

8. Anybody who resists by violence or threatens a legal action taken by the police or security staff for maintaining the order, anybody who enters or attempts to enter an area closed to the spectators or a certain group of spectators, or throws to this area an object that may cause bodily injury, commits a crime.

9. Liability for any damage arising from non-compliance with the safety regulations shall be borne by the spectator. In case damage is caused by several people, spectators involved in causing the damage shall have joint and several liability. Liability for indemnification shall not affect the spectator's offence or criminal liability. The perpetrator shall indemnify the football federation for all costs arising from the damage.

10. During the sports event, the organiser or, when employed, the Security Service and representative of the travelling sports organisation, shall be entitled to use camera surveillance and record the footages in order to guarantee the safety and security of participants.

12. In order to ensure that spectators can leave the stadium in a safe manner, the police may keep the spectators in the sports facility until the groups of spectators of the opposing team leave the sports facility, the area secured by the police as well as from the fans' movement routes. If the police is not present at the sports event, the security staff may also decide on holding back spectators on their own.

13. If the sports event was cancelled or was held behind closed doors or in front of a limited number of spectators, the price of the ticket will be refunded within three working days. If the sports event is interrupted, the tickets and the season tickets – provided season tickets have been sold – shall be valid for the repeated event.

14. For the purposes of these Ground Regulations, the following definitions shall apply:

- 14.1. Organiser: In the case of matches played by national football teams, the Hungarian Cup Final and other sports events organised by it the Pénzügyőr Sport Association.
- 14.2. Participant: the natural person who stays at the venue of the sport event during, as well as one and a half hours before or after the event or until demanded by the organiser.
- Spectators (fans) shall be regarded as participants.
- 14.3. Security staff: Persons with a minimum qualification of "security guard" that are employed by the security company hired to secure the event, and whose clothing allows them to be identified as security staff.
- 14.4. Steward: The organiser may employ stewards for performing the tasks relating to the organisation of the sports event as volunteers or under an employment contract or a contract for other legal relationship involving work. As a representative of the organiser, a steward especially assists in the communication with and providing information to the spectators and other participants at the venue of the sports event, in accessing the venue of the sports event and orientation inside, in the secure implementation of the sports event and in the use of the services provided at the venue of the sports event. Pursuant to the law only individuals over the age of 18 and with no criminal record may be employed as stewards.
- 14.5. Sports event: a competition or match held for the pursuit of a sports activity in or outside a competition system by a sports organisation or sports federation in the presence of participants. A sports programme shall be regarded as a sports event. For the purposes of these Ground Regulations, only a competition or match organised by the PSE is a sports event.
- 14.6. Duration of the sports event: from the arrival of the participants at the venue of the sports event up until they leave the venue of the sports event.
- 14.7. Venue of the sports event: a public location or a specific part of the public area where the sports event is held and where participants may be present.
- 14.8. Sports facility: a structure and site providing the venue for an organised sports event.
- 14.9. Exclusion: Pursuant to the law during a sports event organised by the organiser or with the involvement of a travelling sports organisation and during the use of the admission system the organiser shall refuse to sell admission tickets to individuals ejected from the sports event and shall prevent the attendance of the sports event by such persons (exclusion). The travelling sports organisation and the organiser may exclude from the attendance of the sports event anyone who has been ejected from a sports event, or who was not ejected because an intervention by the organiser (security staff) at the venue of the sports event was thought to provoke actions by the spectators that would have disproportionately compromised the safety of the sports event.
